

COME LEARN AT THE MUSEUM

DID YOU KNOW?

The Anderson County Museum is a place to explore, listen, read, discover, and enjoy. One important area of focus is meeting the needs of our school groups by providing programs that will enhance the classroom learning experience. Students will have an interactive experience while connecting their community with influences that create a unique and diverse society within our state, country, and around the globe.

For K-12 audiences, our school programs are designed to address South Carolina social studies standards. Our programs enrich classroom curriculum and provide an engaging, hands-on journey into the significant parts of Anderson County history.

Admission is free. Teachers and chaperones are required on all ACM visits and tours. One adult teacher or chaperone is requested per six students.
